AMERICAN GEMS OUTPUT GROWS

Total Yield of Precious Stones Last Year More Than $300,000

WASHINGTON, July 28.—American mines in 1911 yielded $2700 worth diamonds, $9500 worth of emeralds, $215, 313 worth of sapphires and $44,751 worth of turquoises, according to figures just compiled by the United States geological survey. The total output of precious stones in the United States last year was valued at $343,692; the production in 1910 was valued at $295,380. The output included gems valued at $100 to $200 per carat, and equal in quality to the average run of the emeralds from South America. In three years one locality in North Carolina has yielded gems worth $10,500.

Much interest has lately been aroused in the moss agates found in Montana. The cut gems consist of stones suitable for use in brooches, stick pins, watch fobs, belt buckles and other ornaments. The gems cut mocha stone command good prices, bringing anywhere from $1 to $200 or $300 apiece. Some of the smaller stones suitable for stick pins, if the mosaic or fernlike patterns are particularly delicate and beautiful, bring $25 each.

Most of American diamonds come from Arkansas and California. The most important find of the year in Arkansas was an 8-8 carat white diamond—the largest diamond so far found in the State. Another white diamond, of 3 44-64 carats, was also found.

The largest emerald so far discovered in North Carolina measured about 1 inch by 3-4 of an inch by 1-2 an inch. It was about half of a crystal split parallel with the length. This piece has been cut into about 20 gems, the largest of which weighs about 3 carats.

Considerable business in gems is done among tourists along the coast of California and Oregon, the beach pebbles having peculiar textures, odd markings and pleasing colors. Some of these stones have been described in terms relative to characteristic features, such as "enchythyol," "flower stone," "wire agate," "fish egg" and "Japanese stone." One company in Avalon, Cal., has been engaged in cutting these stones for several years.
The stone is obtained in all sizes, from cobbles over six inches thick to small pebbles. The tourists also collect these pebbles to carry off as souvenirs, either polished or in the rough.

BOWEL COMPLAINT IN CHILDREN

Children when teething are liable to attacks of diarrhoea and this trouble, especially in warm weather, should never be neglected. The best medicine in use for ailments of this kind is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. When reduced with water and sweetened, it is not unpleasant, which is of great importance when giving medicine to children. For sale by all dealers. Ben-

DREAD DISEASE IN CALIFORNIA

Government Tries to Find the Source of Spotted Fever

Rocky mountain spotted fever, deadly disease of the western states, and distinctly American, has broken out in California, according to a report received at the public health and marine hospital service here from the California state board of health, says the Washington Star.

This disease, which appears to have originated in the Rocky mountain states and which has never been traced to foreign sources as have other scourges which have visited this country, besides its death-dealing capacity may have disastrous effects commercially. The United States public health and marine hospital service is doing everything in its power to learn the causes of the disease and how to prevent its spread.

The disease has been found in its most violent form in Montana, where the death rate among those afflicted runs as high as 75 per cent. In Idaho, on the other hand, the disease has a far lower death rate, about 4 or 5 per cent. In one year as many as 300 cases have been recorded in Montana.
Describes The Scourge.

Assistant Surgeon General William Colby Rucker of the public health and marine hospital service, at present in Washington, spent some time last summer in Montana studying this strange disease. In an interview yesterday he gave the following description of the scourge:

"The other day a case of Rocky mountain spotted fever was reported to the public health and marine hospital service by the state board of health of California. This is the second case which has been reported from that state, and brings to mind one of the most interesting diseases which afflicts man, and the only one which is distinctly American.

"Rocky mountain spotted fever has been known to exist in many of the states from Montana to New Mexico, and thence westward, for a great many years. Tradition has it that the Indians recognized it and understood its seasonal prevalence. The disease is found in a good many fertile valleys, which the Indians used for raising their crops, and it is said that they would go into the valley early in the spring, plant their crops before the appearance of the tick which carries it, and not return for the harvest until this dangerous insect had gone into the resting stage.

"The attention of the medical world was first drawn to this strange malady by the report of a series of cases in Idaho in 1896. It was not until 1902, however, that the active study of the disease was begun. And since that time many of America's foremost scientists have endeavored to solve the riddle of this mysterious disease.
For the last two years the United States public health and marine hospital service has had officers in the field making an intensive study of the means of its prevention and control.

"What is this strange disease? Why is it that the causes have not been discovered? And why it is so important to the people of the United States that it be eradicated?

"Rocky mountain spotted fever is an acute disease in which there is a continuous, moderately high fever, severe pains in the muscles and joints and a breaking out of the entire body in little purple spots.

"It occurs during the summer months, during the time that ticks are prevalent, and practically all of the patients are bitten by ticks.

"The disease is peculiar in that it has the habit of localizing itself on one side of a valley, and also, in that while the disease is very fatal in Montana, it has a low mortality in Idaho and the rest of the western states.

"It is important that this disease be studied and wiped out, not only because it causes human suffering and death, but also, for the reason that it does a great deal of harm to the infected sections. For example, the Bitter Root valley of Montana, one of the most fertile and well watered valleys of the world, has this disease on its western side. On the eastern side of the valley, a section not more fertile nor better watered, land is worth from $500 to $1000 per acre, while the disease has existed for several years, can be purchased for a fourth of those amounts.

"The tick, which plays the malevolent role of the transmitter of the disease, is much like the wood tick of the eastern sections of the United States.
It is a sixlegged insect, and is provided with an elaborate biting and holding apparatus. Apparently it may transmit the disease to its young, and it may be that in this way the scourge is perpetuated.

"During its earlier cycle of development it is found on small animals such as ground squirrels and weasels, but in its adult stage, it is usually found on cattle and horses.

"The ticks are more or less oval in shape, and have a mottled shield or shell extending down over their backs.
They breathe through a pair of complicated openings situated just behind the biting and holding apparatus. The latter is a very ingenious arrangement, consisting of two halves, and looking somewhat like the cake called in common parlance a lady finger. The outer surfaces are covered with small curved hooks, several hundred in number.
After the hole has been punctured in the skin, this clinging apparatus is thrust in, with the two halves lying close to each other. After they get in they are spread apart, and by means of the hooks the tick is able to hang on indefinitely. This is the reason why it is so hard to get a tick of without leaving its head buried in the skin.

UNABLE TO SELL AUSTRALIA DAIRY BUTTER IN HAWAII

Australia is unable to sell her butter in Hawaii or the United States but is forced to export it to Canada, on account of the stringent rules made by the board of agriculture forbidding the use of preservatives in the manufacture of dairy products.

This statement was made to Secretary Super of the Y. M. C. A. last night by J. G. Harkness, secretary of the Wellington, New Zealand, Y. M.
C. A., and one of the largest dairymen in New Zealand. Harkness, who has been on a trip to Victoria, B. C., was a passenger on the Marama last night and paid a visit to the local Y. M. C. A.
The Australian dairyman is on his way to Australia and is returning from Canada, where he has been making arrangements for the sale of his dairy products for which he declares he is unable to find a market in the United States or Hawaii.

This is due to the regulations made by the United States agricultural department forbidding the use of preservatives in the manufacture of butter," said Harkness yesterday evening.

"We have had several shipments sent back to us by the Honolulu food inspectors and are forced to send our products to Canada, where they find a ready market. The use of preservatives is an essential in manufacturing butter which is to be shipped any distance and does no harm to the product.

"Many of our dairymen have agreed to ship no more butter to Hawaii or the United States on account of these regulations, and instead shall sell our products in Canada, where there is a big market for them."
